WARNING

YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM IS GOING TO FAIL

All septic systems are doomed to fail sooner or later. The soil around the drainage tiles will eventually fill up with undigested solids, and the system will back up. When this happens, the entire field will have to be dug up and rebuilt. This is an expense of thousands of dollars and produces a real mess on your lawn. Just imagine the backhoe churning up your prize turf!

GOOD NEWS

You can delay this inevitable failure. You can learn how to live in harmony with that big investment you have under your grass. If you treat the system well by not abusing it, it should outlast your need for it.

Once you understand how a specific system works, it is fairly easy to manage one.

Septo Clean provides lots of information on managing septic systems. See our Consumer Brochure for more details.

RULES OF THUMB

1. If a product is too strong, or toxic to put your hand (thumb) in, don't send it into the septic tank.
2. If something kills bacteria, don't flush or pour it down the drain.
3. Minimize water consumption.
4. Have tank pumped regularly. Your pumper will be able to advise how often for your particular system.
5. Feed your system Septo Clean, to keep the bacteria that do all the work healthy.
